THE NEWSLETTER OF THE GERALD R. FORD FOUNDATION

July 2008

Chairman Jack Ford welcomed guests to the Foundation's annual dinner meeting prior to presenting the Ford Medal. [l-r: Jack Ford, Carla Hills, Chairman-emeritus Marty Allen, Susan Ford Bales, Mike Ford and Steve Ford]

Carla Hills received the 2008 Ford Medal.

Carla Hills Awarded the 2008 Ford Medal

Carla A. Hills received the 2008 Gerald R. Ford Medal for Distinguished Public Service at the annual dinner of the Gerald R. Ford Foundation on June 2 in Washington, D.C. Foundation Chairman Jack Ford presented the award, stating "...it is only fitting that the medal should be awarded to Carla Hills, an extraordinary individual whose long career in public service has placed patriotism before partisanship and who has demonstrated so many of the ideals championed by President Ford. Our nation has benefited for many years from Carla's distinguished service and unwavering commitment to the highest ideals of integrity."

In her long career, Ms. Hills has served as President Ford's Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and as U.S. Trade Representative under President George H.W. Bush. She was the primary U.S. negotiator of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). In 1993 she founded Hills & Company International Consultants, which provides advice on investment, trade and risk issues abroad. She was one of the founders of the Forum for International Policy and serves on a number of corporate and non-profit organization boards.

The Ford Medal is given annually to an individual who has served the public good in the private or public sector. The award was established by the Board of Trustees of the Gerald R. Ford Foundation in 2003. Previous recipients have been Alan Greenspan, Richard Cheney and Donald Rumsfeld, Betty Ford, the Men and Women of the United States Armed Forces, and Lee Hamilton and James Baker.

Letter from the Director

As the photos in this issue amply demonstrate, the Ford Library and Museum continue to draw crowds to exhibits and programs at both of our sites. The number of public programs featuring authors, journalists and leading intellectuals has increased, drawing many "first-timers" to both the Library and Museum.

Student visits to the Museum have continued to increase, aided by the Secchia-Allen Student Transportation Fund which funds bus transportation. In addition, visits by adult tour groups are more than twice what they were two years ago. Our fine facilities also draw other groups to use the Library and Museum for programs and receptions, and this usage has also increased significantly.

At the Museum, we just completed installation of a new permanent exhibit featuring photos, artifacts and tributes from President Ford's funeral ceremonies. The exhibit displays the Profile in Courage Award, Presidential Medals of Freedom and Congressional Gold Medal presented to President and Mrs. Ford, and Stan Stokes' painting of the USS Gerald R. Ford aircraft carrier (CVN-78) that is scheduled for launch in 2013.

At the Library, a new timeline of key events and accomplishments from President Ford's life and career will be installed by late summer, and the "Wolverine Corner," which highlights his time at the University of Michigan, will be redesigned this fall.

We continue to receive documents and other materials from Mrs. Ford and others in the administration, and this will further enhance our draw for future researchers. As part of the Foundation's Five Year Plan, Trustee and former director Richard Norton Smith is leading a project to conduct additional oral history interviews on video with members of the Ford Family and administration. At the same time, Library staff are ready to begin a three-year project to transcribe and process hundreds of earlier interviews to make them available to researchers.

This spring the Fetzner Foundation in Kalamazoo, MI, hosted all of the presidential library directors for a unique three-day retreat to develop ideas for collaboration across the network of libraries. The discussions were wide-ranging and highly stimulating, and the ideas generated are still percolating among the participants. Stand by for future updates!

In another very special experience, First Lady Laura Bush hosted presidential library directors, the Archivist of the United States, and staff from the Office of Presidential Libraries for a private tour of the Presidential Retreat at Camp David. We were greatly honored to have this unique opportunity to see the facilities and share our insights with Mrs. Bush regarding planning for the new George W. Bush Presidential Library.

While this issue is at press, the Museum will host the second annual Wreath-Laying Ceremony, on the occasion of President Ford's 95th birthday on July 14. In conjunction with this, Richard North Smith will present the 2008 William E. Simon Lecture on Public Affairs on July 13. Both Mike Ford and Susan Ford Bales will be in attendance at these events.

Director Didier celebrates the June 17th arrival of the Museum's THREE MILLIONTH VISITOR. The Lund/Dieleman family was thrilled to receive phone calls of recognition from both Susan Ford Bales and Steve Ford.

Looking ahead, the calendar is filling up with wonderful programs for the coming year, including talks by the winners of the 2008 Ford Journalism Awards and special programs at both the Library and Museum in honor of Abraham Lincoln's 200th birthday on February 12, 2009. These are in addition to speakers and events planned in conjunction with feature exhibits at both sites. At the Library this fall, there will be a lobby exhibit on presidential campaigns. At the Museum, feature exhibits include Born to Play Ball, co-curated with the Bush Presidential Library, followed by the White House in Miniature and Caroline Kennedy's Dolls from her childhood in the White House.

We look forward to seeing you at many of these exhibits and events!

IN MEMORIUM

ROBERT T. HARTMANN, 1917-2008

Robert Hartmann died of cardiac arrest at the age of 91 on April 11, 2008. He wrote President Ford's memorable swearing-in speech, when in the aftermath of Richard Nixon's resignation the new President told the nation "My fellow Americans, our long national nightmare is over. Our constitution works. Our great Republic is a government of laws and not of men."

As a long-time senior advisor, confidant and speechwriter for Gerald Ford, Bob wrote many speeches for Congressman, Vice President and President Ford. In Gerald Ford's vice presidential oath of office speech he coined the phrase "I am a Ford, not a Lincoln" to illustrate the plain-spoken style of Gerald Ford, a man of the people.

Prior to joining House Minority Leader Ford's staff in 1968, he served 25 years as a reporter and editor of the Los Angeles Times and 2 years with the House Republican Conference. In the White House he enjoyed frequent access to President Ford as his Counselor, speechwriter and head of the White House Editorial Office, and liaison to Republican Party organizations. In later years he served as Senior Research Fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution and authored Palace Politics: An Inside Account of the Ford Years.

Bob delivered devoted and outstanding service to the Foundation since its inception in 1981. His helpful counsel, wise leadership and great contributions during these years will be sorely missed.

21st Annual Gerald R. Ford Foundation Journalism Prize Winners

Rick Atkinson

■ Received the Prize for Distinguished Reporting on National Defense for Left of Boom, a series of Washington Post articles on the U.S. effort to defeat IED's (improvised explosive devices).

■ Delivered an original perspective, great depth of analysis and a wealth of investigative research on this complex topic that has become a critical factor in the Iraq conflict.

■ His series illuminated the issues not only for the general public but for public officials as well.

Peter Baker

■ Received the Prize for Distinguished Reporting on the Presidency for his work as White House

Correspondent for The Washington Post.

■ His exceptionally trenchant appraisal of President George W. Bush in his penultimate year in office won unanimous approval of the judging panel.

■ Portrayed the beleaguered President with insight, clarity and compassion in an even-handed account of the odds that he faced and the limited success of his initiatives.
